Washington, Jan. 9.—The climax in the war inquiry of the senate military committee will be reached tomorrow when Secretary Baker appears to discuss the proposals for establishing a separate department of munitions and criticisms of army preparations developed during the investigation.

The committee proposes to close the supplies branches of their inquiry with Secretary Baker's testimony and pave the way for immediate movement in the senate for legislation. Investigation of army cantonments, aviation and other activities are to be deferred for the present.

Single Purchasing System Opposed.
Army and navy purchasing methods were compared by the committee today through Rear Admiral McGowan, paymaster general of the navy, and his chief aides. Admiral McGowan earnestly opposed a single purchasing system for both army and navy supplies, pleading against disturbing the navy's successful system. As a substitute he proposed joint war and navy department boards, supplemented by civilian experts, to co-operate.

No shortage of navy supplies exist, the admiral said, reserve clothing is on hand, and little difficulty in securing sufficient supplies has been encountered. He declared emphatically, too, that the navy has not found it necessary to resort to shoddy in navy garments, and denied that shortage of wool made use of shoddy necessary.

His system of publicity of contracts and competitive bids, Admiral McGowan said, had proved most satisfactory. From April 1 to December 15, last, $217,000,000 was spent.

Big Saving to United States.
A. L. Scott of Boston, a textile expert on the supplies committee of the council of national defense, asserted that the supplies committee system has saved the government many millions of dollars. He said General Goethals, now acting quartermaster general, is inviting civilian members to join his new organization for army buying, and while endorsing centralizing authority for purchase of government war materials, insisted that expert civilian assistance is imperative.

Oppose New Contract.
David Kirschbaum, a Philadelphia manufacturer, said he feared reduced production of army clothing as a result of new contracts with labor provisions proposed by the board of labor control and labor standards, appointed by Secretary Baker. Manufacturers are generally refusing to sign the new contracts, he declared, because they feared loss of control of their factories. Two members of the board, Kirschbaum asserted, are pacifists and socialists.

RED CROSS ROOM AT SANTA FE BEAUTIFUL; MUCH WORK IS DONE

(SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE TO MORNING JOURNAL)
Santa Fe, Jan. 9.—Forty-seven workers, including many teachers, gathered in the Red Cross rooms last night at the new museum, it being the weekly museum and Red Cross night when the museum is thrown open for civic work and enjoyment. Four hundred pieces of gauze were made in addition to sewing and knitting. "I dare say," said one of the prominent workers, "there is no other Red Cross chapter in the southwest, or perhaps, in the entire United States, that has more beautiful and attractive headquarters. It is not only a duty but a pleasure and a joy to work here and there is more social delight to me in an evening like this than could possibly be at a card party or a dance."

In addition to the Red Cross workers in their rooms on the second floor, there were a number of knitters around the fire place in the reading room, where two hours were spent enjoyably in social intercourse and discussion by those present. Among the out-of-town guests were: Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Nairn, of Cimarron; Rev. W. H. Stevens, of Espanola, who on museum night, January 22, will deliver an illustrated lecture "From Ocean to Ocean Through Picturesque Canada," and a number of other Espanolans. It is hoped that at future museum nights more of the men folk of the Red Cross workers will join in the social hour around the fire place.

NAVAL MUTINY IN PORTUGAL QUICKLY CRUSHED BY ARMY

Battleship Fires Few Shots at
Land Battery at Lisbon Before
It Is Compelled to Surrender
by Artillery Fire.

(BY MORNING JOURNAL SPECIAL LEASED WIRE)
Lisbon, Jan. 9.—A mutinous outbreak on the Portuguese battleship Vasco de Gama was checked by artillery fire from a fort in Lisbon harbor after the warship had fired a few shots at the land battery, according to a government announcement today. The crew in part was landed and disarmed, surrendering to the army and the republican guards, and government forces later gained possession of the battleship.

Measures taken to insure the maintenance of order are declared to have been effective. The statement issued by the government reads:

"The Vasco de Gama having left the Santos docks against the government's formal orders and having taken a position in the middle Tagus before Fort St. George, a battery in the fort opened fire on the cruiser, which replied with a few shots and then hoisted the white flag. Parts of crews of other ships landed some men from the crew, who, after being disarmed, surrendered to the republican square and at the naval arsenal."

"The government took immediate measures to insure the maintenance of order and the various authorities complied. The latter now considers the prevalence of order completely assured."

"The Vasco de Gama is already in the government's hands."

VICTIM OF BRUTAL ASSAULT IS DEAD

(SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE TO MORNING JOURNAL)
Santa Fe, Jan. 9.—Miss Marie Louis Wagner, an aged and wealthy woman, victim of a brutal assault four months ago at the mining camp of Pinos Altos, died of her injuries at the Silver City hospital. Her assailant, Stephen Burnett, a young man who has a wife and baby, is serving fifteen years at the penitentiary for his crime, having made a confession that he robbed the aged woman of $4,000, of which $2,500 was recovered.

(BY MORNING JOURNAL SPECIAL LEASED WIRE)
Northern Italy, Tuesday, Jan. 8.—(By the Associated Press.)—Snow was falling along the mountain front and an intermittent enemy artillery fire was in progress during a visit which P. Harvey Carroll, Jr., American consul at Venice, just paid to the Asiago plateau on that front as a guest of the Italian general staff.

It was a difficult and dangerous climb up the slippery mountain heights to the summit of a hill 4,900 feet high which Consul Carroll ascended. The enemy positions on Monte Melette di Gallo and Monte Budeneche were seen to be heavily covered with snow, which extended down to the Frensela valley, through which Austrians are seeking to push their way to the plain. The consul visited the Bersaglieri brigade which had borne the brunt of the mountain fighting, finding the men well conditioned and rationed, in fine spirits and confident that they would be able to hold any further attempts of the enemy to advance. The American Red Cross had distributed mountain hoods among the Bersaglieri, who were warm in praise of the American action.

Nearly a foot of snow fell during Consul Carroll's visit and several officers predicted a three-foot fall, which they considered would bring the enemy to a complete halt. A weather report to the supreme command to-

The city of Bassano, through which Consul Carroll passed, had been partly evacuated. Most of the stores and hotels were closed, but a remnant of the population still was about the streets. Firing could be heard from the enemy positions seven miles distant, near Monte Grappa, where the enemy is being held after the failure of his last effort to break through.

F. B. Schwentker tells Kiwanians how he sells life insurance; part of an address explaining benefits provided by a Pacific Mutual Combination Policy

Now, gentlemen, at our meetings the oral booster is supposed to advertise his particular business, therefore, in order to set a good example I wish to take this opportunity to explain the benefits provided by a PACIFIC MUTUAL POLICY. At one of our banquets at our Agency Convention in St. Louis, in September, 1916, I was asked to deliver one of the set speeches and to explain to the insurance men there assembled, how I sell PACIFIC MUTUAL COMBINATION POLICIES. Many of you men here may wonder how you were persuaded to buy life insurance so I will now reveal to you some of the secrets, showing how we insurance men turn the trick, by repeating here part of the talk I made at that time.

I walk into your office and say; "Good morning, Mr. Smith, let me show you our new policy. It's a dandy, and I am sure you will be glad to see it whether you think of buying more insurance or not. I can make it more clear with pencil and paper."

"Here's $5,000 payable to your wife should you die—regular old-line life insurance. If you live twenty years, you—yourself—get back all the money you have paid in—and a little more. Just think of it—all your money back and a little interest. Now twenty years is a long time, and you may have a good many ups and downs, but any time after you have paid for three years you are safe. Your policy would then carry itself for several years should you be unable to meet your payments."

"Now, Mr. Smith, this is not all—in fact the best is still to come. In case of death by ACCIDENT, your wife would receive double the amount—$10,000. Here is something STILL better. Should you lose your eyesight, or any two limbs—either both hands, both feet, or one hand and one foot—you, yourself, will receive $5,000 in cash, $150 per month for one year, and thereafter $50 per month as long as you live, and at your death your widow will still receive $5,000—the face value of your policy. Just think of it—no more premiums to pay, $5,000 in cash, $150 per month the first year, thereafter $50 per month for the balance of your lifetime, and still your policy is good for $5,000 at death. If you are totally disabled by illness or any other cause, you pay no more premiums, draw $150 per month for one year, $50 per month the balance of your lifetime, and your widow receives $5,000 also."

"Mr. Smith, this is the finest policy you have ever seen. It protects you from the top of your head to the soles of your feet, and the amount you pay for it each year is simply that much money saved. Now, Mr. Smith, if you are in good health, and if you can SAVE $180 per year, I would advise you to take this policy NOW. Just sign here please."

One thing more—should you be temporarily disabled—either by sickness or accident—for one day or as long as one year—the PACIFIC MUTUAL LIFE INSURANCE COMPANY will pay you $100.00 per month—and these payments will not be charged against your policy either.
